DEMOCRATS RUSH PREPARATIONS FOR BIG MEET

Both McAdoo and Smith Claim Best Situation and Others Hope

CHAIRMAN HULL IS SICK

William Jennings Bryan Keeps Them Guessing His Policy

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 23.—The great quadrennial jubilee of democracy is passing through its final fevered stage of pre-convention rivalry and enthusiasm. Fifth avenue and the hotel district of Manhattan resounded today with the tramp of cheering delegations and blaring bands while outrunners from the forces of the principal candidates scurried everywhere to bring new arrivals into camp and to consolidate the legions already assembled behind their favorites.

From a balcony on the front of his hotel, William G. McAdoo exhorted a group of howling western delegates to stand by him to the last ditch and they shouted back the assurance that they would.

New York gave vent to its enthusiasm for its favorite, Gov. Al Smith, in the greatest civic parade in the history of the city. He was cheered by thousands everywhere he went.

Leaders Certain

Both McAdoo and Smith factions continued to claim victory as the last state delegations perfected their convention organization but the partisans of a dozen other candidates only redoubled their activities and repeated their predictions that neither of the leaders could be nominated.

The Indiana friends of Senator Raiston announced after one look at the situation that they had determined to disregard his request and place his name formally before the convention.

Meantime convention officials put the finishing touches on their Madison Square Garden arrangements and set the great hall in readiness for the fall of the gavel at noon tomorrow.

Hull Recovering

NEW YORK, June 23.—Chairman Hull of the Democratic national committee was confined to his bed today recovering from heat prostration, overwork, acute indigestion and shock on learning suddenly that the national committee had been able to pay all its debts and would enter the presidential campaign with a clean slate.

Mrs. Hull put her children to bed and was guarding him today against all visitors, sympathizers and ticket seekers. The physician said he expected Mr. Hull to be able to take the gavel when the convention goes into session tomorrow.

Will Present Raiston's Name
NEW YORK, June 23.—Senator Raiston will be placed in nomination at the Democratic national convention under an agreement reached today at a caucus of the Indiana delegation.

Davis Gains

NEW YORK, June 23.—Wiseacres were Sunday clocking the favorites in the democratic derby, which opens here Tuesday, and while it was admitted McAdoo and Smith would leave the post in fine shape, there were shaking of heads and mumblings among the smart ones to indicate the finish and not the start would tell the winner.

Meanwhile, many favorites pranced impatiently, awaiting the start. Outstanding among these is John W. Davis. From a favorite son agitation, the movement toward Davis has assumed the proportion of a real boom, and there are some who say he will be in the running from the start of the race.

Cox Groomed Patiently

James Cox of Ohio is being groomed patiently, but experts are not considering him very seriously, preferring to keep an eye on Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Senator Raiston of Indiana and Carter Glass of Virginia to flash ahead when the two leaders reach a dead heat.

And meanwhile, in the background it is true, but not in obscurity, are the women. They are here hundreds strong, and determined to get in the money. They want two major committee chairmanships, credentials and permanent organization.

Bryan is on Scene

Mrs. Leroy Springs of Lancaster, S. C., and Mrs. Daniel O'Day of New York are suggested for the credentials chairmanship. Both are prominent and either, it is said, will be acceptable to the majority of the women. A western woman, still to be chosen, will be put forward for the permanent organization chairmanship.

William Jennings Bryan has arrived on the scene, taking rooms with his brother, but is non-committal.

JAPANESE STAGE DEMONSTRATIONS

Police Take Steps to Protect Americans Against Possible Violence

(By the Associated Press)

TOKIO, June 23.—Yokohama police authorities, owing to the growing anti-American feeling, intensified by recent California incidents involving the death of two Japanese, have ordered more strict control of agitation against Americans and more complete protection for United States nationals residing here.

TOKIO, June 23.—Evidence of the keenest resentment against America broke out here after receipt of news of the slaying of two Japanese near San Pedro, California, but the arrival of more detailed dispatches indicated in the opinion of government officials that the murder had no connection with the Japanese-American situation and the excitement subsided somewhat.

Police have prohibited the holding of a meeting which has been called for June in Yokohama with the object of protesting against the recently enacted United States immigration law which bars Japanese from that country.

Official reports to the foreign office from Japanese consulates in California indicate that the recent murders of two Japanese at San Pedro were the result of an underworld quarrel and that the local authorities had taken up the matter energetically.

July 1 is expected to be the next great day for anti-American demonstrations as that is the day the exclusion provision becomes effective. The Black Dragon society, a patriotic organization has called a meeting in Tokyo on that day and the Kyoto reservists, who also have been energetic in protesting against the American action, also will meet at that time.

Police said the Japanese who were killed had been slain in a bootleggers' war. News of the killing was displayed with the greatest prominence in all the newspapers.

FRANCIS C. KELLEY BISHOP OF OKLAHOMA

(By the Associated Press)

ROME, June 23.—Pope Pius today appointed the Right Reverend Francis C. Kelley, founder of the Catholic Extension society, as bishop of Oklahoma.

CHICAGO, June 23.—A dispatch from Rome announcing the appointment of the Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelley, founder of the Catholic Church Extension society of the United States of America, as Bishop of Oklahoma, was received with surprise at the offices of the organization here today. There was no news of the appointment at the offices of the chancellor of the diocese.

Winfield Released On Bond For $2,500 On Cutting Charge

Neil Winfield, alleged to have been a participant in the cutting affray Saturday night, was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and released on a bond of $2,500, the county attorney's office reported today.

George Wilfong, who was sent to the hospital for surgical care, was reported to be doing very well.

KIWANIS TO FINISH PARK AT SPRINGS

Money Donated to Pay For Other Needed Improvements; Hefley Speaker

At the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club today money was appropriated to pay farmers in the vicinity of Byrds Mill to complete clearing of the scenic driveway thru the Kiwanian Park.

A committee of local men will oversee the work and in addition Harry Miller and his band of Boy Scouts will spend a day or two building rustic bridges and benches and clearing light under brush.

It is planned to have the road in shape in a short time so that residents of Ada and vicinity may drive through the park and fully appreciate the natural scenery and beautiful location of this playground.

John T. Hefley, superintendent of schools at Henryetta, was the speaker of the day. His address was timely and his message well received by those present.

H. J. Huddleston, assistant cashier of the Oklahoma State Bank, was introduced as the newest Kiwanian.

L. S. Chilcutt and B. R. Craig, the latter of St. Joseph, Mo., were guests. The attendance prize was won by Harold Constant.

RECRUITS SIGNING UP IN NATIONAL GUARD UNITS

A recruiting campaign was launched today by the two national guard units of Ada which are making an effort to add a number of new men to their personnel.

A tent was pitched on North Townsend at West Main where a number of members of the guard awaited prospects. Around the tent were two three-inch guns of the Ada batteries, a truck and other articles connected with the service.

It was stated that several had signed up during the day and that more are in prospect. Lieut. Felix stated that the campaign now on has the endorsement of all the civic organizations of Ada.

McADOO'S FOLLOWERS REAFFIRM ALLEGIANCE

"Soak the Republicans" and "Progressive Democracy" Expressions Used

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 23.—Progressive democracy will recover the American government from privilege and debauchery and set it again on the high road of moral standards, William G. McAdoo declared today in an address to a crowd of delegates from nine western states, Hawaii and the Philippines who came across the continent in two special trains.

Facing the cheering delegations from the balcony in front of his hotel, the candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination told them his enemies were spreading the word that after a few ballots they would turn away from him. There were cries of "no, no" from the crowd that choked Fourth avenue for a block.

Last Ditchers.
"I know you did not come here to betray a trust," McAdoo declared.

"We are last ditchers," cried one delegate from Oregon amid cheers.

"We are not only last ditchers," Mr. McAdoo replied, "but we are for democracy triumphant."

When the former treasury secretary referred to recovering the government from privilege, a delegate shouted:

"Don't forget Teapot Dome."

"We'll soak the Republicans for their dirty scandal from now until election," McAdoo replied.

Besides those from Hawaii and the Philippines, delegations on the special train were from California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Colorado, North and South Dakota. They arrived at Grand Central terminal half an hour behind the schedule, but were greeted by committees representing Mayor Hylan and McAdoo.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Homer Cummings of Connecticut, who is slated to be chairman of the resolutions committee, predicted today that all troubles and differences over various planks that are to be written into the party platform would be adjusted in committee so that a fight on the convention floor would be avoided.

Mr. Cummings said that the supporters of a strong anti-Ku Klux plank were disposed to be reasonable and this with the statement of Tom Taggart of Indiana that a plank scoring secret organizations without specifically naming the Ku Klux Klan would be satisfactory gave rise to the belief in some quarters that a plank in opposition to the Klan without actually naming it would be placed in the platform.

STORMS TAKE BIG TOLL IN LAKE AND ADJACENT REGIONS

Four Known to be Dead and Thousands Seriously Hurt in Gale

CHICAGO WATER POLLUTED

Bathers Caught in Storm and Panic Ensues; Circus Tent Damages

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, June 23.—One of the most serious summer storms in years swept almost the entire upper Mississippi river valley late yesterday, taking at least four lives and doing hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to property. Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota and Illinois were hit by a high wind and hard rains. Three persons were killed in Chicago and one in Minnesota.

Possibly the most serious menace to Chicago that followed the storm is the threatened pollution of the drinking water supply. The storm reversed the Calumet river and caused the sewage to be poured into Lake Michigan.

A steamer was disabled far out in the lake with 700 passengers aboard but rode out the storm with rescue craft brought alongside by S. O. S. calls.

A fleet of sailing yachts was caught and half a dozen were forced to run before the gale with bare poles.

Six government mail service airplanes were wrecked at Omaha when the roof was blown from the hangar.

At Chicago the downpour was accompanied by a wind with a velocity of 49 miles an hour, flooding the streets of the downtown districts impeding traffic.

Thousands of persons at the bathing beaches in anticipation of a temperature of above 90 degrees predicted by the weather bureau were caught in the storm. A panic ensued when a circus tent collapsed in South Chicago and 1,000 persons, mostly children, were caught under the canvas.

NAVY FLIERS SMASH RECORDS OF THE AIR

Both Endurance and Distance Records Hung Up Anew By Bold Aviators

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Four world records for airplanes, including endurance and distance records, were broken and one would record established by Lieuts. T. W. Wood and J. D. Price in a flight which ended early today when their naval craft was forced down by engine trouble.

The navy fliers who took off from Anacostia naval air station here at 12:12 p. m. yesterday in a new type scouting, bombing and torpedo plane, made a flight lasting 13 hours and 23 minutes, covering a distance of 1,550 kilometers. The previously recognized record was 11 hours and 16 minutes with a distance record of 1,275 kilometers.

ROAD TO CEMETERY BEING GRAVELED

A crew began work this morning hauling gravel for the road to cemetery extending from North Oak. It was graded last week and it is expected that the graveling will be completed soon.

The stretch of road is about half a mile in length and the gravel will be 18 feet in width. The cost is estimated at around $900.

This work is due to the initiative of the cemetery association of Ada. The ladies in various ways raised about two-thirds of the money needed and this was supplemented by the county commissioners with an appropriation of $300. The gravel is donated by Bud White who lives just across the road from the cemetery and his generosity greatly reduces the cost of hauling since it is not necessary to haul the gravel very far.

Last year the association succeeded in having trees planted along both sides of the road.

CHICKASHA, June 23.—The body of Charles Martin, 10-year-old son of Mrs. L. W. Powell, was found last night in the municipal bathing pool here.

Free Trip Planned For Confederates To State Reunion

A committee will canvass the city during the next day or two to raise funds with which to give the Confederate Veterans of Pontotoc county, their wives and widows a free trip to the state reunion at Chickasha.

It is planned to secure a special car for the party which will leave Ada July 1 at 12:20 via the Santa Fe. An effort will be made to locate everyone entitled to the trip and also it is expected that a number of Sons and Daughters will attend, thus giving Ada a good representation.

ADA OUTPLAYS WILSON SLUGGERS

Local Lads Take Game at Wilson by Score of 4 to 3

Overcoming a lead made in the first inning by the Wilson team at Wilson Sunday, the Ada club began swatting the opposing pitchers at will and won the game 4 to 3. Connecting for a total of 17 hits, while Wilson was able to garner only seven of the delivery of Farmby, the Ada lads walked away with the game with comparative ease.

Wilson started the fireworks as soon as they came to bat. When the hitting had stopped, the score showed three runs to their credit. Not until the third inning were the visitors able to complete the circuit, evening up the score. They connected another run in the seventh, winning the game.

The performance of Ada's new pitcher, Formby, was entirely satisfactory.

DULL MOMENTS ARE BANNED FOR VETS

Arrangements All Complete For Annual Confederate Vets Reunion

CHICKASHA.—Plans for the annual state reunion of the Oklahoma Confederate Veterans and the Sons and Daughters July 2, 3 and 4, have been completed and not a dull moment during the three-day session will be experienced, according to Paul R. Riley, secretary of the Chickasha chapter of commerce.

Final plans for the military display and maneuvers for the entertainment of the veterans, have been arranged. Two thousand visitors are expected for the convention.

Officers from Fort Sill have been in Chickasha and looked over the ground for the sham battle that is to be staged on the afternoon of July 4. A troop of about 100 soldiers and 106 horses will be brought overland from Fort Sill and camp near the Oklahoma College for Women, so they will be here for the three-day reunion. They will arrive July 2.

On the afternoon of July 2 they will give a military display which is to be concluded with retreat and lowering of the colors. This will be given on the college campus.

On the second day, July 3, many features are promised. In the morning the soldiers will drill on foot and mounted. At 2 o'clock, a baseball game will be played by the Chickasha American Legion team and a soldier team.

Reveille the morning of July 4, will be accompanied by a 48-gun salute, as the flag is raised. A parade will be held with national guardsmen, bands from Oklahoma City and Fort Sill and Confederate Veterans in line.

In the afternoon the sham battle will be staged at Grady field near Chickasha, followed by horse racing, polo games, auto races and features.

Arrangements have been made with officials of the college by local business men to use one of the new college dormitories to house the veterans. They will be served their meals at the college.

Every civic club, including the boy scouts and American Legion, is cooperating with officials to build up the program.

Good Meetings Reported By Gospel Teams

The gospel teams which went to Parish Chapel, Hart and Oakman Sunday report excellent meetings.

Fair crowds greeted the workers at each place and a true spirit of worship existed. Next Sunday the folk from the various communities will come into Ada and have a big get-together Fifth Sunday meeting here. All day services will be held, a lunch being served on the grounds. Various communities will take part in the program.

FLIER MATCHES RACE WITH SUN ACROSS COUNTRY

Lone Aviator Expects to Span One-tenth of Earth's Surface in One Day

KEEPS UP SCHEDULE

Stopping Places Watch For Maughan as He Falls From Sky For Rest

(By the Associated Press)

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., June 23.—A lone aviator, Lieut. Russell Maughan, this morning began a race with the sun in the hope of spanning one-tenth of the earth's circuit before his path is darkened.

Two unsuccessful attempts last year did not dampen his ardor. Following a light breakfast the trail blazer took the air in his 375 horsepower single seater half a minute before 3 o'clock, eastern standard time.

Some few clouds were in the sky but the eastern star being glowed as a guide and a half-moon lit his way towards the Alleghenies which he hoped to cross before full daylight.

One hundred and fifty spectators watched the departure.

Crissy Field at San Francisco lies 2,760 miles away as the crow flies. The aviator, however, will go somewhat farther in his jumps between for inland fields where fresh supplies and a few moments rest awaits him. The flight is scheduled to consume 16 hours and 50 minutes, just four hours less than the maximum amount of daylight afforded him.

Maughan Passes Dayton.

DAYTON, O., June 23.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan arrived here from Mineola, N. Y., at 7:05 a. m. He was held here about half an hour owing to a broken support connection. He then hopped off for St. Joseph, Mo.

Maughan Makes Progress.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., June 23.—Lieut. Maughan flying from coast, stopped here at 1:30 today to take on gasoline. He declared his plane was working splendidly.

Reaches St. Joe Early

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 23.—In fine spirits and his plane in good condition after flying 1,140 miles since 3 o'clock this morning, eastern time, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan landed at Rosecrans field south of St. Joseph at 10:52 a. m. central standard time, this morning.

Maughan landed in St. Joseph 32 minutes earlier than he did in his last attempt July 19, 1923 when his plane went as far as Rock Springs, Wyoming.

He took off again at 11:37.

CHAUTAUQUA CLOSES TUESDAY EVENING

The chautauqua, which started here last Wednesday afternoon, will close tomorrow evening with an entertainment by Clemens and Company and a lecture by Dr. William T. Ellis, one of the greatest travelers of modern times.

Dr. Ellis is a great writer on religious subjects, though he is not a preacher. His writings have been widely read and widely quoted.

Gilbert's All-American band will give a concert this evening, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. This is reported to be one of the best bands in America and the music lovers of this section as well as all others who enjoy good music well rendered, are looking forward to the evening with much joy.

The chautauqua performances have been well attended throughout, as many as 4,000 people having been in the great tent.

PROGRAM FOR BOY SCOUTS AT ALLEN

Misses Bonnie Callis and Mary Belle Harvey and the college male quartet composed of Oscar Parker, Burgess Steed, Lowell Turner and Harvey Faust, gave a musical program at the Methodist church at Allen Sunday evening for the benefit of the Boy Scouts.

They were accompanied to Allen by Scout Executive Miller and Judge Orin Busby. The latter made a short talk about scout work.

Mr. Miller reports a large and appreciative audience and excellent program. It is planned to put on a fair in September and Mr. Miller says a number of business men have taken hold of the proposition and will push it to a successful conclusion.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

HE WILL SWALLOW UP DEATH in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of His people shall He take away from off all the earth; for the Lord hath spoken it.—Isaiah 25:8.

DEMOCRATS GATHER.

The Democratic delegates have gathered to name a presidential candidate. Their task is no easy one for there is no man who now holds a commanding position in the party and who is an outstanding leader. Then, too, the two-thirds rule complicates the situation and renders the outcome still more uncertain. At this time indications point to the nomination of a "dark horse," since Smith and McAdoo have carried on a battle of extermination that makes the nomination of either very improbable.

There is some good material among the "dark horses" and realizing that the party stands a fair chance for victory this year, the delegates will without doubt endeavor to select a man who will command the full strength of the party and also draw votes from the outside.

The independent voter is a man to be reckoned with this year. His tribe is numerous and will hold the balance of power. A strong ticket will mean a heavy vote from this source and on the ability of the candidate to draw on this vote depends the final outcome of the campaign.

Recently a questionnaire was distributed among the freshmen of Columbia university to ascertain the opinions of the young people concerning the leading issues of the day. It developed that a plurality classed themselves as socialist, farm-laborites or independents, the Republicans coming next and the Democrats last. Some concern has been expressed over this manifestation of radicalism, but we see no cause for great alarm. It is natural for youth to hold very liberal, even radical views, but with a little experience in the affairs of life the majority get over this, become more conservative. Of course some are honestly wedded to radical tendencies throughout their entire lives, but many others find it profitable to express themselves thus whether they believe it or not. All they want is a following sufficiently large and liberal to keep them in easy circumstances and as a sucker is born every minute these reformers for revenue continue to flourish to some extent. However, the slump of the socialist party threw a lot of these agitators out of jobs since few were left to drop dimes and quarters into the hat.

Society writers report that there is quite a rush this summer of high flying American and British girls to be presented at court in London. From descriptions we have read the young lady, gorgeously attired, is ushered into the august presence of King George and Queen Mary and a room full of their attendants, her name is shouted to the assemblage by a flunky, the presented one advances, bows low to the sovereigns, receives a stiff nod in return and then backs slowly out of the crowd. It is a very brief affair but it costs some money. The costumes this summer are said to cost from $5,000 upward, depending in the length of dad's purse and his willingness to put up for the show. Of course the king and queen forget the name as soon as it has been called, but the society bud has something to brag about as long as she lives. No society climber can put anything over her when she remarks about the time when she was presented at court.

Speaking of the value of good roads, we recall that when we lived in the black lands of Texas some quarter of a century ago a rain meant that traffic stopped sometimes for a week or more at a stretch and at best the roads were rough all winter if the usual amount of rain fell. Now with good roads the farmers economize their time by waiting until it is too wet to work in the fields before hauling their stuff to town. Formerly it was necessary to use valuable time in dry weather to do this. Would they return to the old order of things? Hardly.

It is not likely that Billy Bryan will bob up in the convention as a dark horse, but it is a safe bet that if it becomes deadlocked he will have to be reckoned with. It is also certain that neither Underwood nor Smith will get much comfort from him. Bryan simply can't stand wet politicians.

To know your neighbor it is necessary to come into personal contact with him. Many a man we have expected to find with horns and cloven feet proved to be a very congenial fellow while others whom we admired proved to be unworthy of any confidence whatever.

Mrs. Jim Ferguson is a candidate for governor of Texas. She certainly ought to have an easy time excelling her husband if the Lone Star voters decide to entrust the affairs of state in her hands.

Oklahoma City is having a hard fight over a union station. Go to it, boys; there's nothing like a good scrap to keep things moving.

FERTILE MINDS OF PROMINENT NEW YORKERS HATCHING NOVEL SCHEMES TO PLEASE DELEGATES

NEW YORK, June 23.—The fertile minds of prominent New Yorkers, Republican and Democrat, who head welcoming delegations for the National Democratic Convention are hatching novel stunts so rapidly that program directors have forsaken the idea of compiling a fixed schedule of events.

Thus, instead of a list of imposing mass functions for the 2,600 delegates, alternates and their families and friends, there have been arranged scores of less ponderous entertainments. These will be of an informal nature, so planned that they need not be disrupted by a change of the convention business program, but can be sandwiched into the visitors' schedule whenever opportunity for a little frolic is presented.

It is intended, for instance, to hold a reception and dance aboard one of the largest American ocean liners some night during the convention. Inasmuch as the Leviathan will reach port on the sixth day of the session, the party probably will be held aboard her at her pier in the Hudson river.

There will be pilgrimages to the former home of one of the Democratic party's most historic characters, Samuel J. Tilden. His famous estate, "Greystone," is now possessed by Samuel Untermyer, who has offered to throw open the beautiful grounds to authorized delegations of convention visitors. A thousand private automobiles have been volunteered for the transportation of pilgrims over the scenic highway bordering the Hudson, to "Greystone."

It is expected that few of the 200,000 or more visitors to New York City during the convention period will return home without having at least one picture of themselves taken here, but it has remained for Nebraska delegations' reception committee to assure its guests that they will be entertained by famous cartoonists, United States District Attorney Hayward, a Republican, heads the Nebraska entertainers. On his committee are John Cassel of the Evening World and Claire Briggs of "When a Feller Needs a Friend" fame. They have been pledged to caricature every Nebraskan who will pose for them.

Another spectacle in which all the delegates may participate will be a "mermaid fishing contest" at the Brantcliffe Manor pools. Visitors are asked to bring casting rods and fishing tackle. The mermaids who will be nationally known swimming and diving beauties, will be the fish. The game will be to hook and land them. Prizes will be awarded the most successful anglers.

Although most of the spontaneous entertainment to be furnished by welcoming committees for states and territories will be without program, the city will lavish part of the $200,000 it has appropriated upon huge formal functions.

There will be a reception for 5,000 persons in Washington Square the night before the convention, at least one grand ball in which all may participate; a mass festival at Coney Island; an excursion to the military academy, West Point, and numerous other large-scale entertainments. The crowning feature of the formal program will be a parade of the police, fire and other departments an imposing event of annual occurrence which this year was postponed until convention time. It will be accompanied by an army, navy and marine demonstration on land, water and in the air.

FILM MADE ON REAL STORY LOCATION

Today at the McSwain theatre many of the million readers of Harold Bell Wright's popular novel, "When a Man's a Man," will have the opportunity of seeing the real Cross Triangle Ranch of the story, the real Williamson Valley, the real Thumb Butte Mountain, and the real Bunk house, for "When a Man's a Man" was filmed in the exact locale about which Wright wrote the story of "Patches."

It was while on a camping trip in the Arizona mountains that Harold Bell Wright conceived this story of the regeneration of a man's soul. The author drew his characters from some of the inhabitants of the mining town of Prescott, Arizona, and many of these were still living in the same spots described in the story when the motion picture company landed in Prescott.

It was an easy matter for the employees to fall into mood of the story, for they did not have to imagine that mountain over there was Thumb Butte—it was Thumb Butte. And they were in the real bunk house, the real corral, riding the identical drift fence and ranges of the story.

Director Edward Cline invited the cooperation and assistance of the inhabitants of the town and Williamson Valley, and much technical perfection and realism was added to the picture through the interest of the ranch people.

The players that portray the well-known characters of the book included John Bowes, as "Patches," Marguerite de la Motte, Robert W. Frazer, June Marlowe, Forrest Robinson, Elizabeth Rhodes, George Hackathorne, Fred Stanton, Arthur Hoyt, Edward Hearn, Ray Thompson, Charles Mailles, and Johnny Fox, Jr. This is a First National attraction.

HIGH ALTITUDE RESULTS IN FANTASTIC BASEBALL

(By the Associated Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, June 23.—Slugging believed to be unprecedented in organized baseball, a total of 264 hits in a series of seven games between the San Francisco and Salt Lake City clubs of the Pacific Coast league played at the local park recently, left the fans gasping.

An explanation other than the fallibility of pitchers was sought, since the batting orgy was participated in generally by players on both teams and affected virtually all the twirlers of the rival clubs. J. Cecil Alter, chief of the weather bureau here, hazarded the opinion that the high altitude of Salt Lake City, 4,200 feet, had something to do with it. The ball finds less resistance in the rarified atmosphere of the Utah metropolis than in the sea level cities along the coast, the forecaster said, and the players are in better physical condition.

This theory gained support among sports writers who recalled the number of froak plays here supposedly due to atmospheric vagaries.

San Francisco won six out of the seven slugfests with a total of 150 hits and 100 runs. Salt Lake City shalked up 114 hits and 70 runs.

A. Knissick, Sapulpa, county agricultural agent, to A. F. Houston, district agent, whose headquarters are here.

A. C. Baer, head of the college dairy department, is preparing a one-day program of instruction for the visitors. Subjects to be covered are judging of dairy cattle, feeding for milk production and crops and pasturage, he said. College prize dairy cows are to be used in the work. Value of sweet clover and bermuda grass for summer pastures is to be emphasized.

ADVOCATE TWO NEW WARDS AT PRISON

Criminal Insane Ward and Women's Reformatory Ward Proposed

(By the Associated Press)

McALESTER, Okla., June 23.—The addition of a criminal insane ward and the construction of a new reformatory for women at the state penitentiary here are being advocated by several state officials.

The present cell building for women is unsuitable, Colonel William S. Key, warden, believes, and he favors the construction of a new building for women on vacant ground south of the penitentiary walls. It would then be possible to convert the present women's building into a ward for the criminally insane, he said. It is said the proposed plans have the approval of Carl S. Rice, president of the state board of affairs. Several legislators have declared they will call for an appropriation to cover such expenses when the Tenth legislature meets in January.

At present no provision is made to segregate criminally insane persons unless they are pronounced enough to be sent to state insane institutions, the warden said.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 23.—Carl S. Rice, president of the state board of affairs, favors an appropriation to build a new reformatory for women at the state penitentiary near McAlester.

Mr. Rice will recommend the addition to the governor at the opening of the Tenth legislature, he said. The affairs board president estimated $50,000 would cover the expense. There is a possibility that the present women's building will be converted into a ward for the criminally insane.

Mrs. Mabel Bassett, commissioner of charities and corrections, has been an advocate of a reformatory for women at the penitentiary, declaring the present women's building just outside the wall is too close to the men's quarters and is wholly inadequate to accommodate 83 inmates, the number of women now at McAlester.

NEW TWIRLER ARRIVES AND PLEASES FANS HERE

That the Ada ball club has obtained a real artist as a ball pitcher is the belief of A. O. Green, manager. The youngster's name is Minor Formby of Sulphur Springs, Texas. He has been playing the season with the Greenville club of the East Texas League, in which club he won six games and lost none. He obtained his release to come to Ada, believing that this organization offered him better opportunities to go to the big leagues.

The lad is right handed, has perfect control, something above the shoulders and promises to be a real find on the diamond. Being less than twenty years of age, he has the opportunity to follow in the wake of the now famous Waner and the coming Williams, who have gone to higher fame from the winning Ada club.

The youngster had his first try-out with the Ada aggregation Sunday at Wilson and his action there was entirely pleasing to the Ada manager. He is cool under fire and knows how to settle down and win games. In the dirt with Wilson, the Wilson sluggers got to him and connected for three runs in the first inning. Nothing daunted by the fierce attack of the Wilsonites, the lad began to deliver and never again were the opponents able to complete the circuit.

Students at Summer School to Present Home Talent Plays

EDMOND, June 23.—The students of Central State Teachers college at Edmond will participate in the corner stone laying ceremonies for the Edmond high school tomorrow afternoon. They will march in a parade of patrons, public school children, college students, Eastern Star women, De Molay members and Master Masons, which will form at the college campus, and proceed to the site of the new building, where the corner stone will be placed by Henry Johnston, grand master of the Masonic lodge in Oklahoma, assisted by the grand lodge.

Following the laying of the corner stone there will be a basket supper held by the Masons and their families in the Edmond city park, after which there will be a band concert by the Shrine band of Oklahoma City and an address by Mr. Johnston.

Plans are being made by the Edmond Masons to care for one of the largest crowds in the history of the city. There will be visiting Masons from every lodge in the county, it is said.

FARMERS BUY MILLION POUNDS PRISON TWINE

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Officials of the Farmers' Union of Oklahoma, a co-operative organization, report that the entire output of binder twine from the penitentiary at McAlester had been sold by their organization to the farmers of the state for the wheat harvest. The association bought 1,380,000 pounds of twine from the "pen."

Many calls, according to the co-operative officials, for binder twine are "going a begging" because the penitentiary exhausted its supply of sisal hemp.

WORKER SERFDOM BEING DEPLORED

Relief Asked From Stringent Labor Activities in Saw Mill District

(By the Associated Press)

ANTLERS, Okla., June 21.—Saw mill workers in the mountainous district of Pushmataha, McCurtain and Le Flore counties are living in a state bordering on serfdom, delegates to a recent county meeting of the Farm-Labor union declared. At their behest a resolution asking the state commissioner of labor to investigate working conditions in the saw mill district was adopted. The appeal has been forwarded to the labor commissioner.

It was said that lumber workers are being paid in script, which is known as "toad hide." It is negotiable only at the mercantile establishments conducted by the lumber companies. It was charged. The men are paid but once a month in violation of the state wage law, the convention was told. The mill companies compel their workers to trade with their stores and as a result outside proprietors of mercantile establishments are being forced out of business, it was alleged. Delegates from the lumber districts further charged that children, some of them as young as eight years, were being employed by the lumber companies.

The lumber camps employ thousands of persons. They dot the wooded mountainous region of eastern Pushmataha, southern Le Flore and northern McCurtain counties. Most of them are almost isolated, being connected with railroad points only by narrow trails many of which are almost impassable.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 21.—Attention of the state labor department has been called to alleged conditions in the lumber districts of Southeastern Oklahoma, Claude E. Connally said and an investigation will be made. A communication from the Antlers organization of the Farm-Labor union, and a copy of a resolution adopted by the county convention of the union, asking an investigation, was the first information the labor department had of alleged conditions, the labor commissioner said.

Because of the almost inaccessibility of the mill district it is impossible for state inspectors to visit the region as often as the department would like them to, Connally said.

ONE BAND SCHEDULED FOR DEMOCRATIC MEET

NEW YORK, June 23.—If police search those who enter Madison Square Garden for the National Democratic Convention, it will be for piccolos and bass drums, rather than for pistols and bombs. Directors of the convention have announced emphatically that one band, and one band only, will be allowed within hearing distance of the Garden while the sessions are on.

Vocal eulogies with chorus will be permitted to native-son sponsors of dark-horse presidential candidates. But there will be only one piece of band music at a time. Trumpet, drum or mechanical noise-making accompaniment will be taboo.

George T. White, chairman of personnel, and John T. Hughes, sergeant-at-arms, have been instructed to seize and impound, for the duration of the convention, all musical or noise making instruments that delegates may attempt to smuggle into the auditorium.

The official band, however, will undergo a grueling test. It will be on duty every time delegates are in session, will open and close each formal convocation and it will play before and after the nomination of each of the score or more of Democratic presidential aspirants.

SUMMER INSTRUCTORS PRAISE WORK OF COLLEGE

Prof. A. B. Herring, superintendent at Wynnewood for the past eleven years, is summer instructor in the History department at the college this year. This is his fifth year with East Central, and he says he thinks it is the best teachers college in the state and he has taught in three of them. His work here is going well. He has appreciative classes, and is enjoying his work.

Mr. Herring says what he appreciates most is the spirit of friendship among all the students. And the fact that there are no iron clad rules to force the students to do the things they are supposed to do anyway. He spoke of several schools over the state where they do have such rules, and still do not get the efficient work and the results that East Central does. He complimented Ada on being such a splendid school town.

Mrs. A. P. Lever from Coalgate, head of the Teachers Training Department there, is a summer instructor in the education department of the college this summer. For the past eleven years she has been a student or a faculty member of East Central and is well acquainted with the history of the institution from its infancy up. She has had work under all three presidents. She says the improvement as shown this summer explains why East Central has grown so much and is coming so much into her own under the efficient management. The time has arrived that attention must be taken to provide more adequate housing accommodations for the phenomenal but perfectly natural growth of the institution.

Mrs. Lever was here when what is the campus now was a cornfield and the building was only begun, which gives her a chance to appreciate East Central as it is today.

WHEAT HARVEST GETS UNDER WAY IN STATE

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 23.—(Special)—Crack!—like the whip of a ringmaster in a dog and pony show, fifty harvest hands answered the first heavy call to the harvest fields Sunday morning, in the federal-state labor bureau on South Broadway.

Forgan was the first Oklahoma city to speak for the troopers of the wheat fields. O. L. Hudson, manager of the bureau, received a call for one hundred men late Saturday night.

Sunday morning the fifty laughing, joking men with one hundred uncalloused hands were bundled into chair cars for shipment to the first sector demanding reinforcements.

The remaining half of the quota will be sent Monday, according to Hudson.

Numerous calls for help have been received from cities within a close proximity of Oklahoma City, but for the most part only a few men were needed. These calls have been filled.

"We can use more men," said Hudson. "A big need in counties in the northern section of the state for harvest hands is expected to develop at any time. Beaver county wants men but they must be English-speaking. Foreign labor is taboo up there—also negroes. The fare is $5.60."

Hudson asserts that the coming week will see a bombardment of calls for harvest aid. Wheat, he says, is ripening with each beat of the summer sun.

CHAPTER VII

Kilmeny Explains

Into the depths of her scorching self-contempt came his blithe "Good morning, neighbor."

Her heart leaped, but before she looked around Moya made sure no tales could be read in her face. Her eyes met his with quiet scorn.

"I was wondering if you would dare come."

"Why shouldn't I come, since I wanted to?"

"You can ask me that—now?"

Her manner told him that judgment had been passed, but it did not shake the cheerful good humor of the man.

"I reckon I can."

"Of course you can. I might have known you could. You will probably have the effrontery to deny that you are the man who robbed Captain Kilmeny."

"Did he say I was the man?" There was amusement and a touch of interest in his voice.

"He didn't deny it. I knew it must be you. I told him everything—how you found out from me that he was going to Gunnison with the money."

"I Know What You Mean," He Told Her Easily.

and hurried away to rob him of it. Because you are his cousin he wouldn't accuse you. But I did. I do now. You stole the money a second time. Her words were low, but in them was an extraordinary vehemence, the tenseness of repressed feeling.

"So he wouldn't accuse me, nor yet wouldn't deny that I was the man. Well, I'll not deny it either, since you're so sure."

"You are wise, sir. You can't delude me a second time. Your denial would count for nothing. And now I think there is nothing more to be said."

She had risen and was about to turn away. A gesture of his hand stopped her.

ATOKA COUNTY SENDS AGENT TO DAIRY MEET

(By the Associated Press)

ATOKA—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on Friday evening last, it was voted unanimously to appropriate the money necessary to pay the expenses of County Agent L. J. McMakin to Wisconsin, where he will make a study for a week or ten days of the dairying industry which has proven so successful there.

The M.-K.-T. railway company will run a special train out of Kansas City on July 6 into the Wisconsin dairying country and Mr. McMakin will be one of the party.

It is said that the dairying district of Wisconsin is a similar country to Atoka county and was in a similar financial condition to this section twenty years ago when the people began the dairying industry. Now it is said to be one of the most prosperous sections in the entire United States.

Many Atoka county people are becoming interested in the dairying business as is shown by the fact that last month approximately $3,000 worth of cream was shipped from the county. By another year it is hoped that sufficient cream will be produced here to justify a creamery at Atoka which would mean better prices to Atoka county farmers for their product and additional employment to Atoka county working people.

We are certain that Mr. McMakin will acquire much information on the trip and that upon his return that he will impart this information to our people and that great good may be derived from Mr. McMakin's trip.

"If you were so sure about me why didn't you have the officers here to arrest me?"

"Because—because you are a relative of my friends."

"That was the only reason, was it?"

"What other reason could there be?" she asked, a flash of warning in her eyes.

"There might be this reason—that at the bottom of your heart you know I didn't do it."

"Can you tell me you didn't hold up Captain Kilmeny? Dare you tell me that?"

He shrugged his broad shoulders. "No, I held him up."

"And robbed him."

"If you like to put it that way. I had to do it. An opera bouffe holdup. I'll make it right with him when I see Captain Kilmeny."

"You admit you took the money?"

"Sure I took it. Had to have it in my business. If you'll sit down again and listen, neighbor, I'll tell you the whole story."

The amused assurance in his manner stirred resentment.

"No."

"Yes."

The clash of battle was in the meeting of their eyes. She had courage, just as he had, but she was fighting against her own desire.

"I have listened too often already," she protested.

"It hasn't hurt you any, has it?"

"Lady Farquhar thinks it has." The words slipped out before she could stop them, but as their import came home to her the girl's face flamed. "I mean that—that—"

"I know what you mean," he told her easily, a smile in his shrewd eyes.

"You're a young woman—and I'm an ineligible man. So Lady Farquhar thinks we oughtn't to meet. That's all bosh. I'm not intending to make love to you, even though I think you're a mighty nice girl. But say I was. What then? Your friends can't shut you up in a glass cage if you're going to keep on growing. Life was made to be lived."

"Yes." . . . Yes. . . . That's what I think," she cried eagerly. "But it isn't arranged for girls that way—not if they belong to the class I do. We're shut in—chaperoned from everything that's natural. You don't know how I hate it."

"Of course you do. You're a live wire. That's why you're going to sit down and listen to me."

She looked him straight between the eyes. "But I don't think morality is only a convention, Mr. Kilmeny. 'Thou shalt not steal,' for instance."

"Depends what you steal. If you take from a man what doesn't belong to him you're doing the community a service. But we won't go into that now, though I'll say this: What is right for me wouldn't be for Captain Kilmeny. As I told you before, our standards are different."

"Yes, you explained that to me just after you—while you were hiding from the officers after the first robbery," she assented dryly.

He looked at her and laughed. "You're prosecuting attorney and judge and jury all in one, aren't you?"

She held her little head uncompromisingly erect. Not again was she going to let her sympathy for him warp her judgment.

"I'm ready to hear what you have to say, Mr. Kilmeny."

"Not guilty, ma'am."

His jaunty insouciance struck a spark from her. "That is what you told us before, and within half an hour we found out that you knew where the booty was hidden. Before that discrepancy was cleared up you convinced us of your innocence by stealing the money a second time."

"What did I do with it?" he asked.

"How should I know?"

From his pocket he drew a note book. Between two of its leaves was a slip of paper which he handed to Moya. It was a receipt in full from the treasurer of the Gunnison County Fair association to John Kilmeny for the sum previously taken from him by parties unknown.

The girl looked at him with shining eyes. "You repented and took the money back?"

"No. I didn't repent, but I took it back."

"Why?"

"That's a long tale. It's tied up with the story of my life—goes back thirty-one years, before I was born, in fact. Want to hear it?"

"Yes."

"My father was a young man when he came to this country. The West wasn't very civilized then. My father was fearless and outspoken. This made him enemies among the gang of cattle thieves operating in the country where his ranch lay. He lost calves. One day he caught a brand blotter at work. The fellow refused to surrender. There was a fight, and my father killed him."

"Oh!" cried the girl softly in fascinated horror.

"Such things had to be in those days. Any man that was a man had sometimes to fight or else go to the wall."

"I can see that. I wasn't blaming your father. Only . . . it must have been horrible to have to do."

"The fellow thieves of the man swore vengeance. One night they caught the chief—that's what I used to call my father—caught him alone in a gambling hell in the cow town where the stockmen came to buy provisions. My father had gone there by appointment to meet a man—lured to his death by a forged note. He knew he had probably come to the end of the passage as soon as he had stepped into the place. His one chance was to turn and run. He wouldn't do that."

Moya, looking at the son, could believe easily this story of the father. "Go on," she nodded tensely.

One night they caught the chief—that's what I used to call my father—caught him alone in a gambling hell in the cow town where the stockmen came to buy provisions. My father had gone there by appointment to meet a man—lured to his death by a forged note. He knew he had probably come to the end of the passage as soon as he had stepped into the place. His one chance was to turn and run. He wouldn't do that."

"The quarrel came, as of course it would. Just before the guns flashed a stranger rose from a corner and told the rustlers they would have to count him in the scrap, that he wouldn't stand for a six-to-one 'ow."

"Wasn't that fine? I suppose he was a friend of your father he had helped some time."

"No. He had never seen him before. But he happened to be a man."

The eyes of the girl were shining. For the moment she was almost beautiful. A flame seemed to run over her dusky face, the glow of her generous heart finding expression externally.

"I'm glad there are such men," she cried softly.

"The story of that fight is a classic today in the hills. When it ended two of the rustlers were dead, two badly wounded, and the others galloping away for their lives. The chief and his unknown friend were lying on the floor shot to pieces."

"But they lived—surely they didn't die?"

"Yes, they lived and became close friends. A few years later they were partners. Both of them are dead now. Sam Lundy—that was the name of my father's rescuer—left two children, a boy and a girl. We call the boy Curly. He was down at the camp fishing with me."

She saw the truth then—knew in a flash that the man beside her had run the risk of prison to save his friend. And her heart went out to him in such a rush of feeling that she had to turn her face away.

"You paid back the debt to the son that your father owed his. Oh, I'm so glad—so glad."

"Guessed it, have you?"

"Your friend was the thief."

"He took the money, but he's no thief—not in his heart. In England only a criminal would do such a thing, but it's different here. A holdup may be a decent fellow gone wrong through drink and bad company. That's how it was this time. My friend is a range rider. His heart is as open and clean as the plains. But he's young yet—just turned twenty—and he's easily led. This thing was sprung on him by an older man with whom he had been drinking. Before they were sober he and Mosby had taken the money."

"I am sorry," the girl said, almost under her breath.

He explained more fully. "Colter by chance got a line on what the kid and Mosby were planning to pull off. Knowing I had some influence with Curly, he came straight to me. That was just after the finals in the riding. We hurried out to find Curly. Well, we were too late. While we were looking for our friends so as to stop this crazy play they were going to pull off, Colter and I met the president of the bank. We had known him in the mining country and he held us there talking. While we were still there news comes of the robbery."

"And then?"

"We struck straight back to the corral. Our horses were there. The boys had ridden back, swapped them for their own, and hit the trail. Mosby's idea had been to throw suspicion on us for an hour or two until they could make their get-away. We rode back to the crowd, learned the particulars, and followed the boys. My thought was that if we could get the money from them we might make terms with the association."

"That's why you were in a hurry when you passed us?"

"That's why."

"And of course the sheriff thought you were running away from him?"

"He couldn't think anything else, could he?"

"How blind I was—how lacking in faith! And all the time I knew in my heart you couldn't have done it," she reproached herself.

His masterful eyes fastened on her. "Did your friends know it? Did Miss Joyce think I couldn't have done it?"

"You'll have to ask her what she thought. I didn't hear Joyce give an opinion."

"Is she going to marry that fellow Verinder?"

"I don't know."

"He'll ask her, won't he?"

She smiled at his blunt question a little wily. "You'll have to ask Mr. Verinder that. I'm not in his confidence."

"You're quibbling. You know well enough."

"I think he will."

"Will she take him?"

"It's hard to tell what Joyce will do. I'd rather not discuss the subject, please. Tell me, did you find your friends?"

"We ran them down in the hills at last. I knew pretty well about where they would be and one morning I dropped in on them. We talked it all over and I put it up to them that if they would turn the loot over to me I'd try to call off the officers. Curly was sick and ashamed of the whole business and was willing to do whatever I thought best. Mosby had different notions, but I persuaded him to see the light. They told me where they had hidden the money in the river. I was on my way back to get it when I found little Bess Lander lost in the hills. Gill nabbed me as I took her to the ranch."

"And after you were taken back to Gunnison—did you break prison?"

"I proved an alibi—one the sheriff couldn't get away from. We had glibbed proof we weren't near the scene of the robbery. The president of the bank had been talking to us about ten minutes when the treasurer of the association drove up at a gallop to say he had just been robbed."

"So they freed you?"

"I made a proposition to the district attorney and the directors of the association—that if I got the money back all prosecutions would be dropped."

"Tulsa—Successful completion of Moneravio 4 by Midland and Delmar Oil companies recently marks the first producer to be brought in on what is generally known as 'millionaire's row,' land purchased for more than $1,000,000 at Osage sale in March.

Texas Rangers have sent the Prince of Wales a wild pony and if he doesn't look out this will be a horse on him.

They agreed. I came back for the money and found it gone."

"If you had only told me that then."

"I had no time. My first thought was to tell my cousin the truth, but I was afraid to take a chance on him. The only way to save Curly was to take back the money myself. I couldn't be sure that Captain Kilmeny would believe my story. So I played it safe and helped myself."

"You must think a lot of your friend to go so far for him."

"His mother turned him over to me to make a man of him, and if she hadn't I owed it to his father's son."

Her eyes poured upon him their warm approving light. "Yes, you would have to help him, no matter what it cost."

He protested against heroics with a face crinkled to humor. "It wasn't costing me a cent."

"It might have cost you a great deal. Suppose that Captain Kilmeny had picked up his gun. You couldn't have shot him."

"I'd have told him who I was and why I must have the money. No, Miss Dwight, I don't fit the specifications of a hero."

Moya's lips curved to a sweet little derisive twist that was a smile in embryo. "I know about you, sir."

Kilmeny took his eyes from her to let them rest upon a man and a woman walking the river trail below. The man bowed and the westerner answered the greeting by lifting his hat. When he looked back at his companion he was smiling impishly. For the two by the river bank were Lord and Lady Farquhar.

One glance told Moya that her chaperon had made up her mind to drive Jack Kilmeny from the field. Lady Jim looked at her husband. He cleared his throat in some embarrassment.

"Mornin', Mr. Kilmeny. If you have time I'd like to have you look over some ore samples sent from our mine."

The American smiled. He understood perfectly. "I've got all the time there is."

Moya intervened again. "First let me tell you the news. Mr. Kilmeny has been freed of all suspicion in connection with the robbery. The money has been returned and the whole thing dropped."

Farquhar's face cleared. "Glad to hear it." He emphasized his words, by adding a moment later: "By Jove, I am glad. Congratulations, Mr. Kilmeny."

His wife added hers, but there was a note of reserve in her manner. Plainly she was not fully satisfied.

Eagerly Moya turned to the young man. "May I tell all about it?"

He hesitated, then nodded shortly. "If you like."

Her voice vibrant with sympathy, Moya told the story in her ardent way. Kilmeny said nothing, but the corners of his mouth suggested amusement. Something of humorous derision in his blue eyes told Farquhar that the Colorado did not take the girl's admiration as his due. Rather, he seemed to regard it merely as an evidence of her young enthusiasm.

Lord Farquhar shook hands frankly with Kilmeny. "We've done you an injustice. If I had a son I would want him to have played the part you did under the same circumstances."

His wife backed him up loyally but with misgivings. The character of this young man might be cleared, but that did not make him any more eligible. Her smile had in it some suggestion of the reserve of the chaperon.

"I'm glad to know the truth, Mr. Kilmeny. It does you credit. Your cousins won't be back to lunch, but if you can stay—"

"I can't, Lady Farquhar. Thanks just the same. I've got to ride up into the hills to let the boys know it's all right. We'll be leaving tomorrow to go back to work."

"We go tomorrow too. I suppose this will be good-by, then." Lady Farquhar offered her hand.

Kilmeny turned last to Moya. "Good-by, neighbor."

Her eyes did not shrink as the small hand was buried for an instant in his brown palm, but the youth in her face was quenched.

"Good-by," she repeated in a colorless voice.

"Sorry I wasn't able to say good-by to my cousins and Miss Seldon. I understand you're all going up to the mines. Tell Captain Kilmeny I'll try to see him at Goldbanks and make all proper apologies for my bad manners yesterday."

Moya's face lit up. "Do you live at Goldbanks?"

"Sometimes."

He bowed and turned away.

The girl was left wondering. There had been a note of reservation in his manner when she had spoken of Goldbanks. Was there after all some mystery about him or his occupation, something he did not want them to know? Her interest was incredibly aroused.

CHAPTER VIII

A Blizzard

Moya found in Goldbanks much to interest her. Its helter-skelter streets following the line of least resistance, its slapdash buildings, the scarred hillside dotted with red shafthouses beneath which straggled slate-colored dumps like long beards, were all indigenous to a life the manner of which she could only guess. Judged by her Bret Harte, the place ought to be picturesque. Perhaps it was, but Moya was given little chance to find out. At least it was interesting. Even from an outside point of view she could see that existence was reduced to the elemental. Men fought for gold against danger and privation and toil.

No doubt if she could have seen their hearts they fought too for love.

Miss Seldon was frankly bored by the crude rawness of the place. One phase of it alone interested her. Of all this turbid activity Dobyans Verinder was the chief profligate. Other capitalists had an interest in the mine. Lord Farquhar held stock in the Mollie Gibson and Moya's small inheritance was invested mostly in the mine. The Kilmenys owned shares in two or three paying companies. But Verinder was far and away the largest single owner. His holdings were scattered all over the camp. In the Mollie Gibson and the Never Quit, the two biggest properties at Goldbanks, he held a controlling vote.

At least a month before the farmers' week opens, a detailed outline will be issued, to announce each day's events by hours.

In the group of speakers to be brought to Stillwater for the week will be several men of national repute in agricultural subjects and women who are widely known in home demonstration work.

President Knapp, members of the college faculty and specialists of the extension division will complete the personnel of the farmers' week staff.

Man Who Held Public Office Over 27 Years Says Medicine Restored His Health And Strength 5 Years Ago And Has Helped Him Keep Well.

"I said a lot in praise of Tanlac some six years ago, but not half enough, in view of what it did for me," is the high tribute paid the famous medicine, a few days ago, by Hon. Archie R. Anderson, ex-sheriff of Harris county, Texas, who resides at 1505 Austin St., Houston.

Mr. Anderson is unquestionably one of the best known and most popular men that ever held public office in the "Lone Star" state. After serving as deputy sheriff of Harris county for 12 years, Mr. Anderson was elected chief of police of the City of Houston. He had occupied this office but a short time when the sheriff of Harris county died and Mr. Anderson was then appointed by the Commissioner's court to serve out the unexpired term of sheriff. He was honored with re-election as sheriff seven different times and served the people in this important office 15 consecutive years.

In 1912 Mr. Anderson declined re-election and retired to private life. He cast his lot among the people of Houston and is a large property owner and foremost citizen of this city. Speaking further of his experience with Tanlac, Mr. Anderson said:

"Before taking Tanlac I was all run-down and had no appetite. I had the worst form of indigestion and could not eat fried foods or pastries at all. I suffered all the worst sort of neuralgic pains and nothing seemed to help me only in a temporary way, until I took Tanlac.

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

has been to witness private showings, to be one of the big outstanding features of the year.

John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Robert Frazer, and a host of other celebrated screen artists will be seen in the many portrayals of "When a Man's a Man" is one of the most popular of all Harold Bell Wright stories. Its circulation is said to reach over two million copies and a conservative estimate of those who have read the story can be placed in the neighborhood of the five million mark.

The story deals with the determination of a Cleveland "son of the rich" who goes West to make a man of himself after having been spurned by the girl he planned to wed. The situations that surround his entry into the desert and cattle land, how he overcomes pride and pitches in as a ranch hand, and after he finally succeeds in gaining his goal, lead to make up one of the most intense and interesting stories that have yet come from the pen of that famous author, Harold Bell Wright.

GUARDS RECRUITING THIS WEEK TO FULL QUOTA

"WHEN A MAN'S A MAN" IS BIG PICTURE

Harold Bell Wright has long been considered one of the most popular authors in the world. His many novels have been read and re-read by countless millions. When an announcement was made some time since that Principal Pictures Corporation would give the screen the entire series of Wright's books, movie fans anxiously awaited the first of the series, and the opportunity to witness the film adaptation of it.

Every civic club of Ada, at least every one that considered the matter has endorsed the recruiting program of the national guard units of Ada, according to officers of the guard. An intensive recruiting campaign is under way this week. Unless the men are obtained, it is said at least one of the units will be lost.

Proper physical training, a good vacation at the expense of the government pay for the fun one has—these are some of the attractions of the National Guard. Then, too, one will be ready to answer the call of the country in case of war and the services are needed in defense of the land of the free and the home of the brave.

It is expected that the units will be recruited not only to their minimum strength but to their maximum strength.

mittal. What voice Bryan will have in this convention is problematical, and is a question of considerable interest on the sidelines.

Program is Drawn.

A tentative program for the first three days of the democratic national convention was announced Sunday as follows:

First day: Convention called to order by Chairman Hull. Invocation by Cardinal Hayes. Official photograph. Brief address by Chairman Hull. Reading of the official calendar of the convention.

Recommendation for temporary officers, and their election.

A committee will escort Senator Harrison, temporary chairman, to the platform. At this point Chairman Hull expects to ask the convention whether it desires Harrison to deliver his address, or take a recess until tonight.

May Postpone Speech

Should the address be postponed, Hull expects the convention to proceed with organization by the adoption of rules and the reference of resolutions to the committee on platform and resolutions. Should the convention insist upon the speech being delivered immediately the organization will follow the speech.

Adoption of a resolution providing for the organization of committees on resolutions, credentials, permanent organization, rules and order of business, to notify nominee for president, to notify nominee for vice president and statement of time and place of meetings.

Transaction of sundry miscellaneous business.

Second Day.

Convention called to order by Harrison. Prayer. Report of committee on credentials.

Report of committee on permanent organization. Address by the permanent chairman, Senator Walsh of Montana.

Third Day.

Convention called to order by Senator Walsh. Prayer. Announcements by the secretary. Call of states for candidates for presidential nominee.

After the nominating speeches have been made the convention will proceed to the adoption of a platform. From this point the program is indefinite.

INTER-ALLIED CONFERENCE TO BE CALLED IN JULY

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, June 23.—Prime Minister MacDonald told the house of commons this afternoon that his conference with Premier Herriot of France was preliminary to an inter-allied conference to meet in London, probably July 16.

The communique issued last night covered the ground of the conversation, the premier said, and he added:

"It is highly desirable that America should be represented at the inter-allied conference July 16. We are not at the moment in communication but communication to that effect will be made to the American government at once."

OKLAHOMA FLIER MEETS DEATH IN KENTUCKY

(By the Associated Press)

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 23.—Arrangements were being made today for the burial at Aerea, Okla., of Clarence Reynolds, 28, veteran aviator of Britton, Oklahoma, who was killed near here yesterday while making an exhibition flight.

Ross Arnold of Dallas, Texas, another aviator, accidentally flew his plane so near Reynolds' machine that the latter's plane was badly wrecked and fell.

Charles Hardon, a fellow aviator, located the flier's widow and child at Britton. Reynolds had expected to join him at Owensboro.

WELL KNOWN ENGINEER DIES ON HIS ENGINE

(By the Associated Press)

MCALISTER, June 23.—James McCusker, engineer of the Texas Special, a fast south bound M.-K.T. train, died at the throttle early today just as the train was slowing down for a stop at a water tank at North McAlester. He was a pioneer of the railroad and had run the special ever since its establishment several years ago. McCusker's home was in Denison where he will be buried. He leaves a widow and family. McCusker was past 60 years of age.

RICH INDIANS CANNOT GET OUT ON COURT ORDER

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 23.—A writ of prohibition, restraining District Judge Frank Justice of Pawhuska, from issuing a writ of habeas corpus for Abraham and Joseph White, wealthy Indians, and their guardian, W. J. Mahan, was issued today by J. T. Johnson, chief justice of the state supreme court.

The writ was issued after a hearing at which it was testified that the three men had ignored a court order directing the payment of $40,000 in alimony. The Indians were sued in Pottawatomie county for divorce, each wife being awarded $20,000 permanent alimony which the testimony indicated the brothers and their guardians refused to pay.

BAKER SEEN AS COMPROMISE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE

Mrs. Newton D. Baker and children (left to right): Newton D. Jr., Margaret and Elizabeth; the Baker home in Cleveland, and Baker at work in his office in Cleveland.

Ohio's delegation in the Democratic national convention will "stick to the finish" for James M. Cox, nominee in 1920, but if the time comes when the fight to nominate Cox is hopeless, it will swing its strength to Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, in the hope of making him the party standard bearer. Ohio politicians see Baker's "dark horse" chances for the nomination as excellent, figuring that neither McAdoo nor Smith will be able to win the necessary two-thirds votes and that McAdoo would turn the delegates pledged to him to Baker in the event of a hopeless deadlock.

Farmers' Column

Pontotoc county was visited by a rain just when it was beginning to be needed. No music by Caruso or other artists could hold a candle to that made by the pattering raindrops Friday night and no music they ever made brought them as much money as this rain will to Pontotoc county. With the cloudy weather that followed the rain had a chance to get in its best work and growing stuff was not scalded as would have been the case had the sun come out in full force immediately after the downpour. Weather reports indicate that this section received the heaviest rain in the state.

I notice some farmers are buying June corn seed. Evidently they intend to take no chances on a feed crop this year. With plenty of feed they will be in good shape for the coming year and that will be some item.

The warden explained that the bounty is paid upon each pair of feet, taken from a crow or hawk killed after June 22. Each claim must be sworn to and presented to the county clerk. He must destroy the feet within 12 hours after receiving them. He forwards the claims to the game warden who makes payment.

Konawa Scouts are now under this council. This troop leaves soon for the Kiamichi mountains for their summer camping trip. Scoutmasters Z. T. Fletcher and Cecil Meyers will accompany the boys on this trip. We are mighty glad to have the Konawa boys with us.

Francis scouts spent two days and a night at Byng. Three fine fish were caught and many a good long swim was enjoyed. All of the scouts passed nearly all of their second class tests. They did much of their own cooking which was done well. Andrew Large, Senior patrol leader, proved to be a good one. Ten boys went on this trip. We certainly appreciate the kindly hospitality shown us by the chief engineer of the Oklahoma Light & Power plant, who loaned us boards with which to make a table and seats.

The helpful and abundant rain of Friday night interfered with two well planned scout meetings of troops 9 and 2 but the good the rain will do, offsets all the joy that the boys missed.

The Boy Scout Picnic planned by the Kiwanis club for the scouts at Byrd's Mill Kiwanis park had to be called off on account of the rain.

The plan now is to go down there Wednesday and spend the day there swimming, cutting down trees and thus taking our second class tests, and eating dinner together. If you like to swim, and have a good strong appetite for ice cream, get your hoe or your rake, bring your swimming suit and a lunch and be here Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at the Convention Hall.

Hayes Allen Shaw and Sonny Bullock are two new scouts who have recently joined. Glad to have them.

We are mighty glad to see Henry Cathey back with us. Joe and Henry formerly belonged to troop 10 and will join this troop again. Scoutmaster Gilman Mackin took his patrol leaders out for a hike Wednesday and started this troop on its collection of butterflies, moth beetles and other insects.

We will have our regular patrol leaders and scout masters meeting Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church. Be sure and come. We expect to have a good attendance at these meetings and hope that Colbert and Oakman scouts will come in to them.

Scoutmaster Roy Meek will be at the swimming pool at Glenwood Park to see scouts take their swimming tests and any merit badge work.

Troop 7, under Clyde Aletag, planned a fishing trip for Saturday night. John Paul McKinley has his recruit for his first class tests in Sonny Bullock. He taught him the knots and much of the tenderfoot test.

Army Tactics Being Used by Prison Warden

(By the Associated Press)

McALESTER, Okla., June 20.—Lessons in discipline, and control of men, which he learned as an officer in the American Expeditionary Forces and the Oklahoma national guard are being put into practice at the Oklahoma state penitentiary here by Colonel William S. Key, warden. Colonel Key served with the quartermaster corps over seas and at present is an artillery colonel in the national guard.

Colonel Key devoted much of his time, when he first assumed the office of warden, to a study of the culinary department of the penal institution. The meals have been improved and a greater variety of food is served. Discontent is less likely to develop among men who are well fed, the warden said, remembering Napoleon's remark about an "army fighting on its stomach."

The cost of feeding each of the 1704 men and women in the penitentiary is 21 cents a day. The total cost of maintaining each convict is 97 cents a day, the warden said.

Although Oklahoma wardens have long since abandoned the dungeons where recalcitrant prisoners were put, it was not so long ago that unruly prisoners were forced to stand in solitary cells, their faces to the wall and their arms tied to the wall above their heads. This has been done away with and the strongest punishment now in force is solitary confinement in cells in which both air and light have free admittance. The new warden has found this sufficient punishment.

Colonel Key has inaugurated a new policy in the conduct of the penitentiary by which every department functions independently being subservient only to the warden. Each branch keeps its own accounts and each must remain within its allotted appropriations, the warden said.

"Hoodman Blind" Laid in America.

"Hoodman Blind," the William Fox screen version of the famous stage play by Henry Arthur Jones and Wilson Barrett, which will open at the American theatre today is laid in a picturesque American fishing town. The quaint setting offers a beautiful background for a compelling story and, it is said by New York critics, the result is particularly pleasing. In the cast are David Butler, Gladys Hulette, Regina Connelly, Frank Campeau, Mare McDermott, Trilby Clark, Jack Walters and Eddie Gribbon.

GRASSHOPPERS IN COTTON BELT NOW

Reports From Many Areas in State Herald Coming
Of Pests

(By the Associated Press)

DUNCAN, June 23.—Grasshoppers have invaded the cotton area of the south central Oklahoma fibre belt and aid is being sought of the state board of agriculture to eliminate them before irreparable damage is done, according to B. F. Harrison, county agent of Stephens county.

Droves of the pests have been noticed in Stephens, Cotton, Murray, Carter and Jefferson counties, according to information from those counties, and farmers are banding together to eliminate them. The cotton is reaching a stage where grasshoppers can do much damage, Harrison said.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 23.—Cotton farmers in south central Oklahoma and wheat growers in the north central belt have appealed to the state board of agriculture for aid in combating grasshoppers which have made their appearance in several counties.

Arsenic poisoning is the most effective way to fight grasshoppers, says T. E. Gordon, state entomologist. The arsenic is mixed with syrup and bran and spread across a section of a field in the path of the advancing flock of grasshoppers. There also are various spraying methods but the arsenic poisoning is considered the most destructive he said.

Contrary to the general belief the insects advance over the ground and do not fly from field to field, Gordon declared. By spreading arsenic across their path great numbers are killed.

ENID, June 23.—Droves of grasshoppers have entered the wheat fields of Garfield county, but steps have been taken to eliminate them before they do much damage to the grain, A. I. Jordan, county agent declared. Arsenic poisoning is being used to combat the pests, he said.

(By the Associated Press)

STILLWATER, Okla., June 23.—Two one-act comedies are to be staged by summer school students at the Oklahoma A. and M. college June 26, under direction of H. H. Anderson, of the department of public speaking. It has been announced, "Modesty" and "Suppressed Desire," by Paul Hervieu and George Gram Cook, will be presented. They are to be the first of a series of dramatic entertainments planned for the hot-weather session, Anderson said.

Profits from the productions are to be given to the stadium fund now being solicited among students, alumni, faculty and friends of the institution.

Parts in the two playlets will be taken by the following students:

Maurine Wallace, Shawnee, formerly a student at Oklahoma Baptist university; Alice Hunt, Okemah, formerly a student at Ward-Bellmont college, Nashville, Tenn.; Lee Gistrap and Elmo Flynt, both of Chandler and Harold Matkin, Stillwater.

PIONEER SCHOOL OF OIL FIELD MANAGERS TO BE ORGANIZED BY ARDMORE MINE BUREAU MAN

NORMAN, June 23.—H. C. George, geologist and metallurgical engineer, will organize and direct the pioneer school for the training of oil field engineers which was recently provided for by action of the board of regents of the University of Oklahoma. The new school will open in September.

Decision to establish such a course was reached in the summer of 1923 when Charles J. Wrightsman, Tulsa oil man, and Frank Buttram, Oklahoma City producer, were appointed members of the board of regents. Need for trained men in oil field managers and engineers in the Oklahoma oil fields was the cause of the move to found the new school.

The board of regents searched for more than a year to find a man of sufficient technical training to head the new school and after eight months communication, succeeded in employing George, who is now engaged in work for the United States Bureau of Mines in the Ardmore, Oklahoma, oil fields.

The University of Oklahoma in its department of geology, school of engineering, geology, petroleum refining, chemical engineering, engineering physics, school of business, school of civil, mechanical and electrical engineering as well as scientific departments is already giving most of the technical work which will be required for training of oil field engineering.

It will be the work of George to organize the curriculum of the new school from the courses now being taught and to decide what new courses shall be added and combine these courses into a four year's study for the degree of bachelor of science in oil field engineering.

Tentative plans are to require four years academic work in laboratory and theory in oil field problems ranging from the geological work to the actual distribution of the oils and gases. Within the four years academic work will be required two summers or six months actual oil field training before the student will be graduated.

George's work in geology and metallurgical engineering during the past 28 years has been such that members of the board of regents considered him one of the best fitted men in the United States to establish the new school.

Engineering, mining and oil journals have been publishing researches and scientific treatises regularly since 1905. George is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State College and the University of Pittsburgh, entitled: "The Glacial Drift in Warren County, Pennsylvania."

During and since George's undergraduate days, he has worked in various phases of mining engineering and geology. Beginning in 1896 as a tool dresser for the Crew Levick company, George has followed his scientific field without interruption.

Outstanding work that he has done includes work of chief engineer of the Wisconsin Zinc company; petroleum engineer of the United States bureau of mines; survey of the coal resources of Alaska, and petroleum research in Oklahoma.

Combined with the actual field work, George also has had extensive educational work. He was head of the department of mines of the University of Pittsburgh for three years; was director in charge of the Wisconsin Mining school at Plattsville for three years and was professor of metallurgy at the Wisconsin Mining school for one year. George is a member of both the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers and the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.
